Helping PAWS

PAWS:

Animals brought to the Upland Animal Shelter have four days to be adopted or die.

Joy Harvey thought abandoned animals deserved a better chance at life and decided to do something to help. Through her efforts, the Promote Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) was started six years ago.

The volunteer organization and the city are working together to have a new shelter built this year. When the project is complete, the city will handle animal control duties, PAWS volunteers will process adoptions.

"I discovered the shelter was here and that it was not an open one where people could just walk in to look at the dogs," Mrs. Harvey said. "There wasn't any kind of adoption process."

She said she decided to try an experiment. She began running ads in the local newspaper about the animals available at the shelter. The response was overwhelming and she's been doing it ever since.

Now Mrs. Harvey has the help of other project.

"What I would like to see done is to have a lot of emphasis placed on adoptions. These animals have a right to live," Mrs. Harvey said.

The new shelter should help the adoption process. "People now just don't know how to pick up their animals even if they wanted to find them," Mrs. O'Melia said.

When dogs are brought into the new 3,500-square-foot shelter located at the corner of 15th Street and Campus Avenue they will be processed, then transferred to another portion of the same building to await adoption.

The current shelter is located at 1454 Campus Ave.

PAWS hasn't determined how long the animals will be held but it will be longer than the current four days.

PAWS volunteers keep tabs on newspaper lost and found ads in an effort to reunite their animals with their proper owners.

This month the group will begin its educational program in the Upland

"I took one look at this shelter and said it needs help. It's hard to walk in and not care."

Nicki Ross, PAWS member

Upland residents who have joined PAWS. Among those who spend many hours working for the shelter are Bonnie O'Melia, Lori Howard, Shirley Miraldi, Marian Cochran and Nicki Ross.

PAWS has found homes for hundreds of animals since it began. Last year it helped process the adoptions of about 150 animals, Mrs. Harvey said.

Currently, city animal control officers pick up stray or abandoned animals and take them to the shelter. If the animals have licenses, the owners are contacted. If not, the animals are held for four days and then killed.

The animals are kept in cages and locked inside the small, dark shelter. No one remains on the premises except to feed the animals. Anyone interested in adopting an animal must first call the Upland Police Department in order to make an appointment.

The city has agreed to hire additional part-time personnel to man the new shelter, enabling it to remain open during the day.

Upland has a need for a more humane way of dealing with animals, according to Mrs. O'Melia.

"We have volunteers who man our two phones during the day and the city's firefighters have given us a lot of help," Mrs. O'Melia said.

Upland Fire Department members have agreed to build the new shelter during their off-duty hours. The city council is awaiting conceptual drawings of the building before proceeding with the School District. PAWS will show a film, "Who Cares Anyway?," to students. It will also recruit students to donate canned food to the shelter.

Mrs. Ross' husband even got into the act. The employees at his business, Rolyn Optics in Covina, heard him talk about the shelter and collected $225 for the project.

"These people don't even live in Upland and they cared enough," Mrs. Ross said. "I took one look at this shelter and said it needs help. It's hard to walk in and not care."

In addition, PAWS maintains a reference list, descriptions of dogs clients might like to adopt.

Mrs. Miraldi got involved five years ago when her daughter adopted a sheltie. She maintains most of PAWS' records.

"People should come out and see the animals. They are not obligated to adopt one," she said. "We don't want anyone to take an animal if they really don't want it."

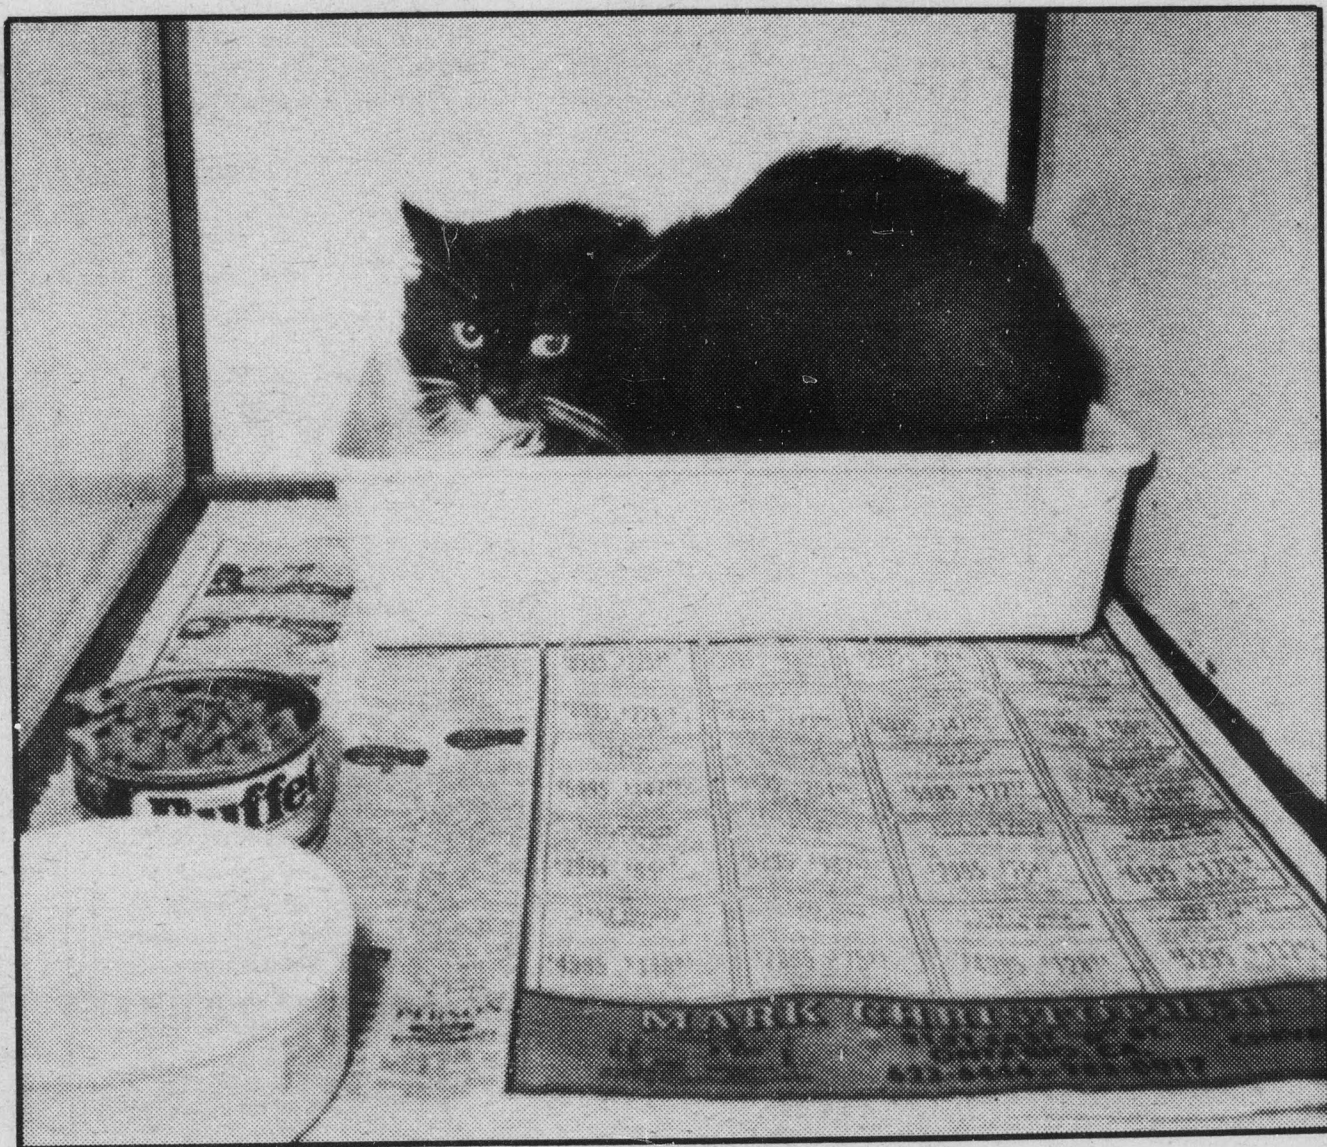

Mrs. Howard agreed. The animals' welfare is the main priority, she said.

"We're not naive enough to think every animal adopted out of the shelter gets a good home," Mrs. Harvey said. "We know some go to good homes and at least it's better than dying here."

Mrs. Harvey said that six years ago she would take on the PAWS job but maintain a detached attitude about the animals. "I just couldn't after seeing them. You just want to find a home for all of them."

For animals

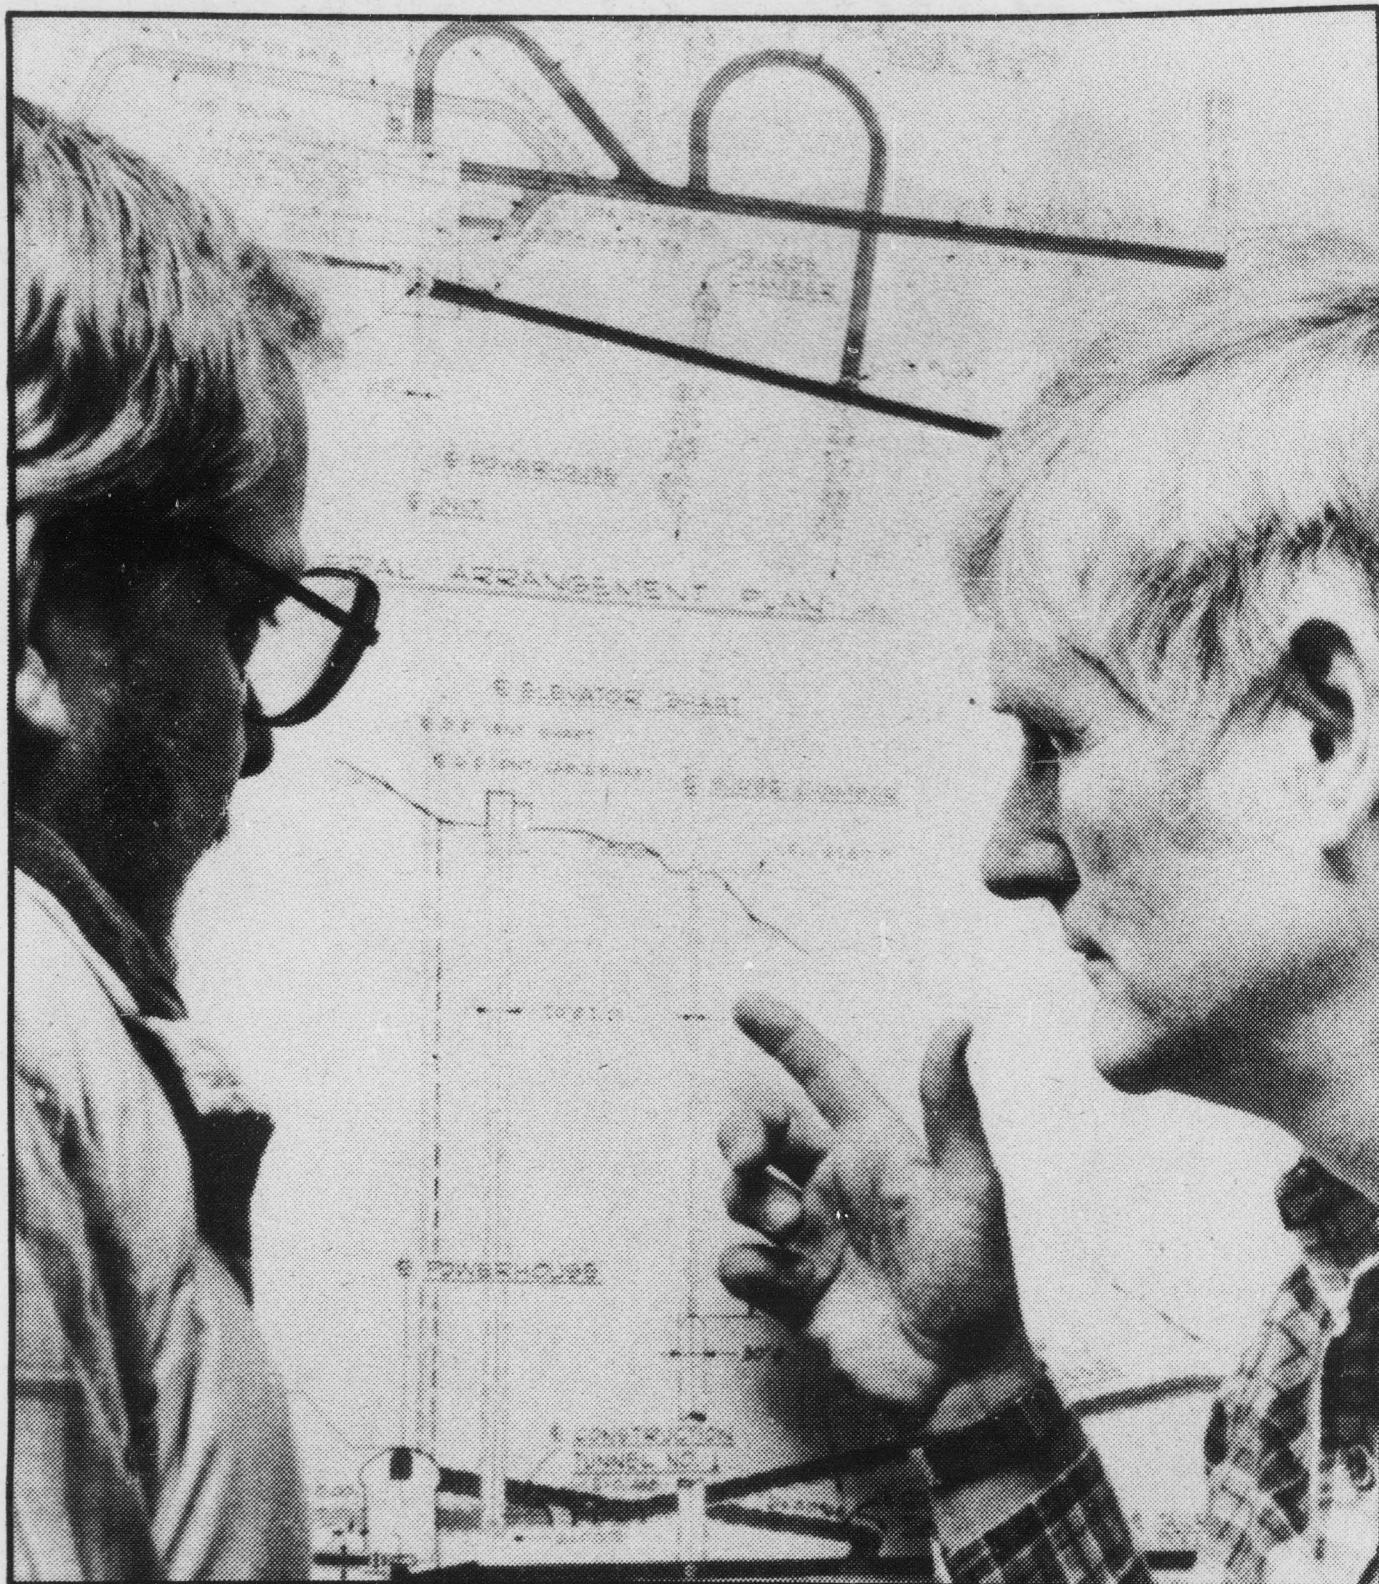

The Upland Animal Shelter has been a temporary home for lost or abandoned animals for years. Budget and manpower constraints, however, will allow the city to keep animals only four days. If they aren't adopted, they die. Some animals seem to sense they soon will die (top left) because they remain quiet in their cages. Cats, too, are brought to the facility (top middle). Promote Animal Welfare Society founder Joy Harvey and volunteer Shirley Miraldi (top right) work many hours at the shelter. Bonnie O'Melia visits dogs at the shelter (bottom) to provide some company to lonely animals.

Job keeps him busy up at Shaver Lake

By Suzanne Sproul

Bill Emrich of Upland has a demanding work schedule but he's having a great time.

Emrich is in charge of overseeing the $321 million construction of the Balsam Meadow Hydroelectric project for Southern California Edison Co.

For the next two years, Emrich will be dividing his time between Upland and Shaver Lake with stops at his Rosemead office.

"I work in Rosemead but I'm up there at least once a week," the project manager said. "When the plant is completed in 1987 people in this area will benefit, although it is impossible to determine where energy comes from."

Challengers don't impact sign law

By Suzanne Sproul

Upland will stand by its current sign ordinance despite some challenges by area businessmen.

Enforcing the city's sign regulation continues to be a constant battle, Planning Director Bill Young said Friday, but developers have suggested changing the ordinance.

Young brought the matter before the Upland Planning Commission recently. The board agreed that the now-defunct city architectural commission worked hard to come up with an ordinance to rid Upland of unsightly signs.

The size of an attached business sign is determined by the length of the property line in front of a building. Developers of centers usually determine their own sign themes, including lettering and coloring.

Bond named general chairman of YMCA sustaining campaign drive

Randy Bond, Upland, will serve as general chairman of the 1985 West End YMCA annual sustaining campaign, announced YMCA Board President Coy Estes.

Bond will head a volunteer campaign that will begin Jan. 30 and will involve more and 150 volunteers working to raise $65,000 in the cities of Rancho Cucamonga, Upland, Ontario, Montclair and Mt. Baldy Village.

The advance gifts portion of the fund-raising effort (beginning Jan. 30) will be followed by a community teams campaign kicking off Feb. 26. Volunteers include YMCA board members, members of the YMCA and interested community people.

"A strong YMCA is a reflection of a strong community," Bond said. "It deserves the support of both businesses and individuals in the way of voluntary service and financial support.

"Many young people have experienced unforgettable camping experiences, sports activities and enhancement of the parent-child relationship, because the YMCA was there to offer programs and needed services. For these reason I support the West End YMCA and I urge you to join with me and give generously, so that we may sustain the programs and principles of the YMCA."

Bond recently retired as city/area manager for the Southern California Edison Co. after 34 years with the company. He is active in community affairs serving on the board of directors of three local chambers of commerce. He is past president of the West End YMCA and the Upland Kiwanis. He and his wife, Amber, live in Upland.

The West End YMCA is located at 215 W. C St., Ontario. For further information, call 986-5847.

Auditions set

The Chino Children's Theater will hold auditions for the "Phantom Tollbooth" on Jan. 23, 24 and 25 at the community building, Tenth and B streets in Chino from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The play, to be directed by Eve Austin and produced by Paul Larson, tells the story of a boy, Milo, who is bored with life. One afternoon he discovers a magical "Phantom" tollbooth that transports him to mysterious places.

Job keeps Upland engineer on the move

Two hundred workers are tunneling through walls of granite in the rugged Sierra Nevada in order to complete the project, located about 55 miles northeast of Fresno in the Big Creek area between Huntington and Shaver Lake.

"The project is on schedule and within budget with tunnels and the 15,000-square-foot powerhouse chamber already more than 25 percent complete," the 19-year Upland resident said.

When the plant goes on line Jan. 1, 1988, the underground facility is expected to add another 200 megawatts of generating capacity to Edison's Big Creek complex, enough renewable electric energy to meet the needs of a community of 100,000.

"The Balsam Meadow project is especially designed to provide new electric capacity and energy to help supply Edison's 3.3 million customers in Central and Southern California during critical peak demand periods," Emrich said.

Edison boasts that the Balsam Meadow dam water is the "hardest working water in the world."

The new plant will have a feature that will allow the turbine generator to be reversed. The reversal will enable the generator to act as a motor pump to push water back into the area so it can be stored for peak usage, he said.

Possible environmental impacts from the project were reduced because it is constructed underground. Emrich said Edison has worked closely with environmental groups and the California Fish and Game Commission to balance the company's needs with the ecological needs of the area.

"We're trying to be good neighbors," Emrich said.

The project also is designed to help reduce the nation's reliance on foreign oil imports. During an average year, the water at the plant should provide the energy equivalent of 340,000 barrels of fuel oil, he said.

"It's a lot of work, but it's fun," Emrich said.

Emrich is a mechanical engineer. He began working for Edison 11 years ago as an engineer and manager. He and his wife, Julie, live in Upland. They have two children, Cheryl and Cliff. ||

PHOTO TIPS

In a recent column I mentioned purchasing a pair of White Lightning WL5000 studio strobes by the Paul C. Buff organization. But don't let the "studio" part fool you. I don't have a studio; all my work is done on location and I'm finding these lights handle my requirements rather well.

I'm doing this column to share with you some of Paul's thoughts on light and lighting. The examples and definitions I'm going to use from his "Lighting For Still Photography" should begin to illuminate (pun intended) some dark areas about light and its measurement.

First of all, Buff says, it's necessary to differentiate between light intensity and a given amount of light. Think of a frame of film, he says, as a bucket of water. It takes a certain amount of light to expose a frame of film, just as it takes a certain amount of water to fill a bucket. There are two ways to fill your bucket — let the water trickle in (low intensity), or use a large-diameter hose (high intensity) and fill the bucket instantly.

We can expose film by the light of a candle (low intensity) if we give it a long exposure; on the other hand, we can expose that film very quickly by using large amounts (high intensity) of light.

So out of all this, we begin to realize it's the light intensity along with the exposure time that results in the film being properly exposed.

But wait. There are two more variables that determine how much light is needed to make an exposure — lens aperture and film speed. While there are times it is practical to get short exposure times in low light levels by using fast film and "fast" lenses, taking that step is not without cost. The faster films produce results with more grain and poorer resolution than slow films, and the larger lens apertures reduce the depth of field.

So the bottom line to all this is that if we want sharp, brilliant pictures, with good depth of field, we need to use slow or moderate-speed films, moderate or small apertures, fast exposure times and lots of light.

Using a phrase such as "lots of light" doesn't really tell us a whole lot, so photographers have devised a system to measure the quantity of light — in terms of candles. Once you become familiar with all the appropriate definitions, you'll begin to make some sense out of the specifications accompanying your strobe light.

First of all, there's CANDLEPOWER (CP) — here talking about the intensity of light emitted by a standardized form of candle. One Candlepower is the light of one candle.

CANDLEPOWER SECOND (CPS) — an amount of light. One Candlepower Second is the amount of light emitted by one candle in one second.

FOOTCANDLE (FC) — the intensity to which a surface is illuminated. One Footcandle is the intensity of illumination falling on a surface 1 foot from a candle.

FOOTCANDLE SECOND (FCS) — the amount of light falling on a surface. One Footcandle Second is the amount of light received by a surface 1 foot away from a candle during a one-second interval.

BEAM CANDLEPOWER (BCP) — a measure of the effective intensity of a light source when it's focused into a beam by a reflector or a lens. For example, a single candle emits One Candlepower in all directions. But if a mirror is placed behind the candle, the light traveling back toward the mirror is reflected to the front, aiding the frontward emission and actually doubling the intensity of the light projected frontward. The candle produces no more light, but the light available is simply concentrated into a smaller area.

In this case, the result of focusing the available light creates two Beam Candlepower. Beam Candlepower measurements are made along the axis of the projected beam.

INVERSE SQUARE LAW PROPAGATION. This is the law in physics that says the intensity of light falling on a surface is inversely proportional to the distance between the surface and the light source. As an example, if the distance between the light source and the surface is doubled, the surface illumination decreases by a factor of four (two squared). Move the light source and the surface from 1 foot to 10 feet apart, and the surface gets 1/100th as much light at 10 feet as it did at 1 foot.

Now keep all this in mind, because we're going to continue sharing Paul Buff's "Lighting For Still Photography" with you next week.

Cashing in

The French aristocracy once revered the "magic metal" — with the sheen of mercury — more than gold or silver.

Shortly after it was discovered in 1807, aluminum became a precious commodity surpassing all other scarce metals in value.

In the late 1800's, Napoleon III, emperor of France, embellished his dining table with spoons and forks crafted from gold and silver. Yet his prized guests sat before a setting of aluminum tableware.

As aluminum production improved, the metal became plentiful and rapidly fell from grace.

Today, Rancho Cucamonga residents bring aluminum by the bag — usually trash bag — to a drive-up bin at the Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Plant in Etiwanda where their empty beverage cans are chewed to a metallic pulp.

The payoff? About a penny a can.

"We used to try and convince people how important recycling is to the environment," said Reynolds spokesman Martin Zweben. "But it didn't work as well as money. Money gets people to move and do things."

Indeed, the dollar pitch has worked. While Reynolds used to recycle 1 million pounds of aluminum annually in the late 1960's, today the company does that volume in a day, said Zweben.

The price of aluminum fluctuates often, and the Reynolds plant in Rancho Cucamonga must adjust its price to the market.

Currently the average price offered for aluminum in Rancho Cucamonga is 27 cents per pound. "But the easiest way to figure it is one cent per can," Zweben said. "Usually 24 cans equals a pound." The Rancho Cucamonga plant is the grinding center for all cans collected by Reynolds throughout Southern California. It is one of four of its kind in the United States, said complex Manager Lee Pearce.

The plant's most imposing feature is its noise — which begins with the delivery of cans from Southland collection centers.

Large trailers are backed onto a hydraulic lift and tipped to release their payload — a rippling flood of multi-colored cans that washes into a receiving bin with a deafening splash.

The noise has just begun.

Conveyor belts carry the load over magnets to remove any steel cans from the bunch.

When the rejects have been removed, the aluminum cans rattle along a belt and are dropped into a grinder that thunders as it shreds and reduces the cans to what Pearce calls "popcorn."

The aluminum scrap is put on railroad cars that will take it to a Reynolds processing plant in Alabama, where it will be melted down and reshaped into metal sheets.

A can of soda can go from the shelf in the store to the garbage to the recycling plant and back to the store shelf in as little as six weeks, said Pearce.

"In that process a 7-UP can may end up a Pepsi can," he said.

West Valley residents can bring their aluminum cans to the Reynolds Recycling Plant in Rancho Cucamonga at 9910 East 6th Street Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Prices paid for aluminum at the plant tend to be higher than those at Reynolds' collection points because they are ground on the spot, said Zweben. "There is less overhead."

There are more than 1,500 collection points nationwide and in Canada, Puerto Rico and the Bahamas, Zweben said. He added, "The recycling process has taken this country from what was once a throw-away society and helped the country change. Now people are much more conscious about what they throw away."

Q. Our miniature schnauzer had puppies approximately four weeks ago.

This is our first litter of puppies. I have heard various opinions regarding the correct age at which to wean the puppies. When should puppies be weaned and what is the best method?

A. Generally it is best to keep the puppies with the bitch as long as she will tolerate them. Even if the dam has little or no milk and supplemental or complete feeding is required, she will keep the puppies clean and warm.

Most puppies start eating the same solid foods as the bitch at approximately 3 weeks of age. By 5 to 6 weeks of age the dam usually has started to wean the puppies. Most bitches have their puppies completely weaned by 6 to 8 weeks of age.

Weaning usually is easily accomplished. The combination of the bitch's tiring of nursing and the eruption of the puppy's temporary or milk teeth usually brings on weaning rapidly. When nursing becomes painful, the dam spends less and less time with her puppies.

During the weaning period it is advisable to confine the dam with her puppies only at night and allow her to be separated from them during the day for several days. The bitch's intake of food and fluid should be reduced sharply until she finally is separated from the puppies permanently. Congestion or distention of the mammary glands rarely occurs when these recommendations are followed.

There is evidence indicating that puppies weaned at too early an age have difficulty adjusting socially later in life. Puppies should not be weaned prior to 6 to 8 weeks of age.

Q. I have read that veterinarians now are able to remove embryos from a pregnant female and transfer them to a non-pregnant female where they develop. What is involved in such procedures?

A. Embryo transfer is the process by which embryos, fertilized eggs or ova, are collected from a donor female before they have become attached to her uterus and are transferred to recipient or surrogate females to complete their pregnancies.

Successful embryo transfers, ones resulting in live, healthy, normal offspring, have been done in all the common farm animals and in many zoo animals. Probably more transfers have been done in cattle than in any other species.

The donor and recipients must be synchronized in their reproductive cycles. Synchronization can be accomplished by drug therapy. This procedure usually requires several weeks.

Depending upon the prior treatment of the donor, single or multiple embryos may be harvested for transfer. The procedure to produce multiple eggs that result in multiple embryos is called superovulation.

Superovulation involves hormonal therapy to overstimulate the ovaries so that from two to 30 eggs are released. At just the right time the donor animal is inseminated. Usually the donor is inseminated several times to ensure that all of the eggs are fertilized. The fertilized embryos usually are harvested five to seven days after the donor is first bred.

In cattle and horses embryo recovery may be accomplished either surgically or non-surgically. After the embryos have been collected from the donor they are examined carefully and the normal ones then are transferred into the recipients.

The principal advantages of embryo transfer are that more offspring from a superior animal can be produced in a lifetime and some infertile animals can have offspring.

Stewarts honored on 40th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Stewart of Upland were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary with a champagne brunch held in the Ontario home that was built in 1892 by the honored man's grandfather.

Attending the ruby anniversary celebration, held in the gardens of the home, were 150 friends and acquaintances.

Hosts for the event were the Stewarts' daughters, sons-in-law and grandchildren: William R. and Sandy Lee and sons Bill and Scott, current residents of the Stewart family home; John and Carol Hawkins; and John G. and Shirley Preston and daughter, Heather, and son, Gavin.

The former Margaret Sanders and Stewart were married in November 1944 in the Cathedral of the Foothills (Upland Methodist Church) with the Rev. Charles L. Knight officiating.

A long-time area resident, the honored man served 12 years as a councilman in Ontario and three years as an Ontario planning commissioner. He has been a local citrus rancher for many years, carrying on the family tradition established by his father, Harold S. Stewart, and his grandfather, William Boyd Stewart.

Mrs. Stewart has long been active in community service including many years with the PTA, Girl Scouts, Upland Junior Welfare League (now Assistance League of Upland), West End United Way, San Antonio Community Hospital Auxiliary, Chaffey Community Republican Women and the Chaffey District Young Republicans.

More recently, she served as co-chairman of the Ontario Centennial Celebration observed during 1982. As a member of the Chaffey High School class of 1939, she was elected the third female student body president in the history of the school at that time.

Margaret and Walter Stewart moved to Upland eight years ago from the Ontario family home built by Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Stewart, pioneers of the Ontario Model Colony days.

Herb farm is a way of life

COVENTRY, Conn. (AP) — For 35 years, Adelma Grenier Simmons has been tending her Caprilands herb farm in northeast Connecticut.

But, unlike most small gardeners, Mrs. Simmons has also been sharing her garden, homestyle herb cooking and sage advice about herbs.

The offer has attracted people from throughout New England, in bus tours, school classes and private parties. Some of them grow herbs themselves. Others are just curious, looking for a relaxing day in the countryside.

"Herbs are plants that are of use to man for flavor, for fragrance, and for medicinal purposes," she said on a recent afternoon. "And for magic and fun," she added.

The feisty woman talks about herbs and their powers with the air only found in an authority on the subject. Her best known book, "Herb Gardening in Five Seasons," has been available for 22 years in more than a dozen editions.

In addition, Mrs. Simmons has written 30 other works on herbs, from "The World of Rosemary" to the "The Bride's Book of Herbs." The latest, "Herbs Are Good Companions," focuses on the history of vegetables and accompanying recipes.

But the gardens themselves are the sign of her know-how. Spread over about five of her 50 acres, each is arranged around a theme, like the Shakespeare garden that features the poet's herby quotations and the herbs they poeticize.

Almost everywhere, the smells are strong. Growing in the gardens are more than 300 varieties of herbs — common ones like sage and parsley, and more obscure ones, like anchusa and weed poke.

Mrs. Simmons' interest in herbs began in the 1930s, when the native New Englander was working as a buyer for a group of department stores in Hartford. Gourmet stores were just coming into vogue, she said, and so she started her own herb garden, to keep up professionally.

Before focusing on herbs, Caprilands was a side project for Mrs. Simmons. In fact, the name is derived from the Latin word, capri, for goat; originally, goat-raising was what Mrs. Simmons had in mind for the property.

But the stony, dry farmland is ideal for growing herbs — there's plenty of sun and good drainage.

Mrs. Simmons starts her days by weeding and surveying the gardens. Then, after tea at 11 a.m., she settles into her throne-like wooden chair in the bay window of the tiny bookstore and greets her visitors.

ENTERTAINMENT & DINING GUIDE

Aussie, Chilean wines enter U.S.

By Dan Berger
Copley News Service

If California wine makers find it hard to sell their wines because of lower prices for French and Italian imports, I have worse news:

More competition is coming from places that previously didn't offer much in the way of a challenge. Places such as Australia and Chile.

Australian wine has been imported here before, but generally the lines have received a cool reception. One reason has been a lack of freshness in the white wines and a lack of acidity in the reds.

About 1981 a line of wines called the Harry Palmer Selections came into the United States from Australia. They were better wines than had been made available in the United States, but the wine was imported just briefly and then disappeared.

Now an old-line Australia wine name, Brown Brothers, is appearing in this country and the wines show good character and decent pricing.

The best value in the line is a 1978 Cabernet that sells for $5.25. The wine has a full, almost pungent Cabernet character and a supple mouth feel. Also good were the 1982 Chardonnay ($11), with a rich, buttery aroma, and far better acid than wines of the past.

I also liked the 1982 Brown Brothers Semillon and 1982 Sauvignon Blanc, both $7. The former has a most earthy, chalky aroma, and it improves with aeration. The latter is full and rich in aroma, and both have a more oaky taste than one would find in most wines.

The Brown Brothers' estate in the Milawa Valley, midway between Melbourne and Canberra on the edge of New South Wales, was founded in 1889. However, only in the last generation, the Brown Brothers' fourth, has there been dramatic improvement in quality through the use of modern equipment.

The other new import of note is Chateau Andrew, a Chilean wine imported by RTC Imports.

The story of Chateau Andrew starts with the fact that the name of the wine was created by RTC Imports' Paul A. Ryan. The middle initial A stands for Andrew.

Ryan decided to "create" the Chateau Andrew name when he discovered one of the few estate-bottled lines of wines in Chile.

Since 1760 the family of Maria Ignacia Echenique owned land, about 450 acres, in the Colchagua region of Chile. She and her husband, Jorge Eyzaguirre, operated the agricultural ranch until the early 1970s.

It was then that the rise to power of Salvador Allende caused major changes.

"Allende confiscated all the land," said Eyzaguirre on a recent visit to the United States. "We had to buy the land back." By 1974, when a coup overthrew Allende, Eyzaguirre had bought the land back, at a high cost.

On a trip for other business, Ryan, a wine lover, and RTC vice president Carl Wilson discovered the wines of Peralillo, the name of the vineyard on the Eyzaguirre property. They were impressed.

However, there was no unique line of wines from Eyzaguirre. The family sold some wine in London under the name Don Gabriel, but the rest of the wine was sold to a limited market in Chile. (There is no great demand for premium wine in Chile, so the Eyzaguirres have had a hard sell.)

The Chateau Andrew wines are made specifically for RTC, and they are blended with the U.S. market in mind, to specifications of Ryan and Wilson.

The best of them is a 1983 Cabernet Sauvignon ($9.25). The aroma is full of chocolatey and toasty scents, and the wine has a big, ripe taste with a soft undertone.

Also impressive is the fine 1984 Sauvignon Blanc ($7.25), a fresh, light, delicate wine, and the exceptional 1984 Chevrier ($8.25), a steely, juniper-berry sort of wine with the freshness of a young French Graves from Bordeaux.

Preacher contends giving is the best reward

By Rev. Lee Truman
Copley News Service

A standard technique in psychotherapy is to treat certain types of neurotic problems by gradually withdrawing psychic support. This is to force patients to develop their own ego strength, and emotionally, eventually to stand on their own.

We become weak by being highly dependent. One can be dependent on a parent and later a spouse, and the development of the whole personality never can take place. Withdrawal of the support generally can force people to use their own resources, to rethink and develop their own strong "self-concept" and then they start to grow. The assumption of this style of treatment is that at the core of every neurotic person there is some basic self-esteem that can be fanned into life and growth. This is the twig of the new beginning.

But suppose support is gradually withdrawn from a neurotic person and a probe is made for that one spark of self-esteem, and then the horrible discovery is made that there is nothing left at the center of the person's selfhood? Withdrawal therapy is helpless in the face of this kind of life tragedy. True, there are not too many people who think that lowly of themselves, but when such a situation comes along, only an unshakable creed can provide any reassurance of self-worth.

People may search for love to reaffirm their worth and they may be rebuffed again and again, betrayed and frustrated. Or people may experience years of

Toastmasters to meet January 16

The Ontario-Upland Toastmasters is a club to help members improve themselves and gain self-confidence when called upon to speak.

The club has a new meeting place, Di Censo's Restaurant, 1651 W. Foothill Blvd. in Upland and the next scheduled meeting will be Jan. 16.

Visitors are welcome. For information on the group, call Jon A. Baker, 981-1016, or Claudette Leever, 596-4941 or 624-4098.

being "beaten down," and have all of their self-confidence destroyed. At the moment of total and utter despair, only the basic definition of the human personality can provide any hope of renewal.

It is that God, in his very creation of us mortals, gives us love and nurture. So it is that each person is endowed with the shadow of God's essence. No matter what else may happen, no matter what crimes such a person may commit, no matter what despair he may fall into, God's fundamental love remains.

It has been the basic point of theology that God's love does not hinge on self-worth. Carl Barth has pointed out to churchmen of the world that God does not care if a person is good or proud or successful or just satisfactory. It was Paul Tillich who told us that the essence of human life includes God's love, and it is the very "ground of our being."

It seems that the fundamental task then of the churchman and Christian is to give evidence to their fellows of the belief that God loves every person. I see it as a constant necessity to reassure people of their great value and potential. So many lives are changed by a word of confidence. So many young people are redirected by a reappraisal of hope. An expression of life and enthusiastic appreciation is like watering a parched plant. The person receiving that love responds with a new zest and power.

I cannot believe that anyone escapes the doubts and fears that life can have for us. Almost all of us are constantly looking for reassurance — laying little snares to get it, directing conversation to the recognition of our gifts. But the very act of giving reassurance to another buoys one's own spirit. To have taken part in the expression of God's love is a noble experience every one of us can have often.

The Galilean put it in these words: "He who would find his life must lose it." The very act of loving, of giving or reassuring, of helping someone else sets the stage for lifting our own doubts. What really can be of greater value to one's own worth than to feel the unexpressed thanks of someone whom you have encouraged and lifted.

Through the years I find that we find ourselves, not by looking all around for the answer and techniques and achievement, but in taking part in the search of others. We reach out to others, and we are helped.

The other side of that coin is that the sickest people I know are so often those whose lives finally have been reduced to the overwhelming concern for themselves.

COINS

By Gary L. Palmer
Copley News Service

When President Ronald Reagan is inaugurated Jan. 20 it will be a special inauguration — the 50th in the 200-year history of America.

And an official inaugural medal will mark the event, as has been the case with every presidential inauguration in the 20th century.

The Medallic Art Co. of Danbury, Conn., and the Franklin Mint of Franklin Center, Pa., will strike the medals that bear a dual portrait of the president and Vice President George Bush. Versions will be available in bronze, silver and gold.

Medallic Art Co. will strike medals with an antique finish and the Franklin Mint will produce the Reagan Second Inaugural Medals in proof surface.

Two separate organizations have been selected to distribute the medals: Towle Silversmiths of Newburyport, Mass., through retail stores, and Bowers and Merena Galleries of Wolfboro, N.H., for numismatic distribution.

The medal is the work of sculptor Mico Kaufman, who prepared the Reagan likeness during a sitting in the White House a week after the election. The Bush likeness was prepared from photographs.

Kaufman previously designed the presidential and vice presidential medal of Gerald Ford.

Special lettering on the edge of the medals will reflect the milestone swearing in of the president, reading: 50th American Presidential Inauguration.

The medal's obverse bears a three-quarter portrait of Mr. Reagan in the foreground with a full profile of Bush, both facing right. Around the edge of the rim are the words SECOND INAUGURATION JANUARY 20, 1985.

The reverse design is the result of a suggestion by the president — an eagle with wings outstretched, modeled from a Roman eagle sculpture in the private dining room in the White House.

The medals will be struck in three sizes and be available in two sets. A 1½-inch silver dollar-size medal will be available in antique bronze for $10 and in antique or proof silver for $55. The gold version is 14-karat gold antique or proof finish in 1-inch diameter for $550.

There is a $1.50 postage and handling charge for each medal.

Orders for any of the Reagan Second Inaugural Medals, sets or PNC, may be directed to the Inaugural Committee, c/o Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pa. 19091.

STAMPS

By Lea Blauvelt
Copley News Service

The first special stamp being issued by the British Post Office this year turns the spotlight on trains. On Jan. 22, five stamps will mark the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Great Western Railway.

It is now 15 years since the last regular steam passenger train gave its final whistle in the Births Isles, belched its last puff of smoke and succumbed to the age of the faster, cleaner diesel train. Despite the soot, smells and noise, the steam train was and is a romantic symbol to Britain's million railroad addicts.

With a salute to nostalgia, the Post Office paid tribute to five great steam trains of the past. The stamps show the Flying Scotsman (17 pence), the Golden Arrow (22 pence), the Cheltenham Flyer (29 pence), the Royal Scot (31 pence) and the Cornish Riviera (34 pence).

The designs were taken from especially commissioned paintings by world-renowned artist Terence Cuneo, who summed up the lure of steam trains like this: "Steam engines are living beasts. You can turn on and off modern diesel electric locomotives with the flick of a switch. But a steam engine wheezes away to itself even when stationary — it oozes a sense of power, of weight, romantic appeal and, above all, has a warm heart."

The Flying Scotsman was probably the most famous of the more than 100 passenger trains of Britain. The Golden Arrow was a luxury Pullman service between London and Paris, while the Cheltenham Flyer won its name and its reputation as the fastest railway run in Britain — it gave the world its first 70-mph schedule.

The Royal Scot was the great rival to the Flying Scotsman in the battle for London-to-Scotland non-stop services, while the Cornish Riviera was the great Western Railway's London-to-Plymouth express service.

Other stamp issues announced for Britain in 1985 will be the ongoing Fauna series (March 12) featuring the buff-tailed bumble bee, the seven-spot lady bug, the wart-biter bush cricket, the stag beetle and the emperor dragonfly.

Four stamps recognizing 1985 as European Music Year will salute Handel and his "Water Music," Holst's "The Planets Suite," Delius's "The First Cuckoo" and Elgar's "Sea Pictures." These are to be issued May 14.

On June 18, an issue will be devoted to sea safety and, on July 30, an issue noting the opening of the Royal Post 350 years ago by Charles I.

The Arthurian legend establishes the theme of the Sept. 3 issue, coinciding with the 500th anniversary of Caxton's reprinting of Sir Thomas Malory's "Morte D'Arthur."

NEW STAMP IDENTIFIER OUT — Do you know what a fantail margin looks like? Or a wing margin? What is a blind perforation or a syncopated perforation? What about Merry Widow, burelage, wove paper, duplex cancel and Seebecks?

These and other philatelic terms are described and illustrated in the new edition of an expanded "White Ace Postage Stamp Identifier," written by Les Winlick and published by the Washington Press (Two Vreeland Road, Florham Park, NJ 07932; $5.45 postpaid; or $4.95 at local stamp dealers).

Upland High School's 112-pounder wrestler, Joe Olague, fights off a near-pin by Norco's Gus Gutierrez during Saturday's Blackwatch Tournament. Despite his efforts, Olague was a loser on points. Olague and his Upland teammates will be action tonight against rival Alta Loma in the Baseline League opener.

Wrestling opener could be the toughest

By Charles Bentley

Tonight's opening round of Baseline League dual meet wrestling action could very easily decide the league crown.

Now that's not supposed to be the way a good league race works. In traditional Hollywood script style, everything is supposed to come down to the final match, with the final bout of the night making the crucial difference.

But that probably won't happen this year, since Alta Loma hosts Upland at 7 tonight in the BL opener for both schools. And up to this point, the Braves and Highlanders look to have the most and best talent.

"Don Lugo is young, Claremont has some kids hurt and Glendora just doesn't look to be that strong," said Alta Loma coach Mike Kettle. "Basically, it looks like this match will have a lot to do with deciding the championship."

"It's funny when you think about it," said second-year Highlander coach Jack Glasheen. "We could very easily decide everything at the start. Don Lugo may have some say along the way, but right now the two of us look to be the best in league."

Using last weekend's Upland Blackwatch Invitational as a yardstick measurement, tonight's battle should be nip-and-tuck all the way. The Scots finished higher in the team scoring, third with 96 points to Alta Loma's seventh place mark of 79.

Three Highlanders reached their respective finals at the tournament, only to see all three have to settle for runner-up medals.

Paul Chaung was pinned by San Bernadino's William Calvert at 100-pounds, with Calvert later named the meet's Most Valuable Wrestler in the lower divisions. Upland teammate Peter Chao later lost a 19-6 decision to Pat Heitz from Rim of the World in the 121 division, while Todd Kliwer was pinned by Diamond Bar's Rick Chang in the 193 weight class.

Chaung (18-6), like Kettle, also looks to play a key role in tonight's meeting, more than likely having to face Alta Loma's Tom Guenther.

But while Saturday's performance might appear to give the Highlanders a slight edge, the Scots coach is far from confident of an type of victory.

"As a team, we came through with a better showing in the tournament. But when you're talking dual meets, that's a little different. Worried, heck yes I'm worried," said Glasheen. "This is going to be a good one."

Does the fact that this is the league opener have any affect on the final outcome? Glasheen wasn't ready to say, save that his club had a few injuries coming out of tournament action. But the Highlanders' coach does like the fact that he's getting Alta Loma out of the way early.

"I like it," he explained, "because we do get it out of the way. If we beat Alta Loma, we still have to be ready for every match, but it means we can start aiming for league finals. If we lose, it just gives us a little more incentive against the rest of the league, plus should get us up that much more for the finals."

"I think everything will all come down to which team stays healthy throughout," predicted Kettle. "Upland has some people hurt, Don Lugo has some kids hurt, we have some injuries and some inner-team problems."

Hillside members set marks

A pair of Hillside Aquatics Swim Team members established club records during a recent AA meet at Palm Springs in which six locals competed.

Jackie Burrell of Alta Loma and Kim Kirkpatrick of Upland set Hillside records in the 50 backstroke and 100 butterfly, respectively. Burrell competes in the 11-12 age group and Kirkpatrick in 17-18.

Burrell was fifth in setting the backstroke record and she also took seventh in the 100 back. Kirkpatrick was fourth in her race.

Others who competed for coach Mike Dickson included 10-year-olds Kim Thomas and Matt MacCallum; 15-year-old Jennifer Brannon and 16-year-old Jennifer Racey, all of Alta Loma.

In the 9-10 age division, Thomas was sixth in the 50 breaststroke and eighth in the 100 breaststroke, while MacCallum was seventh in the 50 breaststroke. Brannon took fourth in the 15-16 50 freestyle, with Racey a sixth in the 100 butterfly.

According to Dickson, the winter session is now in progress at Chaffey College. Workouts are held daily on campus.

For addition information on joining Hillside, interested swimmers or parents can contact Dickson at 986-7696.

Upland set for Sunkist

Upland High School will have two entries in the prep portion of the annual Sunkist Indoor Invitational track meet Friday night, Jan. 18, at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Junior Glenda Smith will run for the Highlanders in the rated division of the girls' 880 while Upland will also have an entry in the boys mile relay.

Smith, who has a best of 2:17.86 in the event, will run against Amy Dabul of Temple City, Angie Sims of L.A. Locke, Rhonda Ribar of Camarillo, Serena Smith of L.A. Crenshaw, Canyon's Kathy Kelly and Tracy Locke of San Marino.

Coach Bob Loney's quartet of Tony Brown, Lance Hollis, Cliff Gill and Jerry Fuentes is expected to challenge teams like Hawthorne, Temple City and Centennial.

Upland will also be represented by 1979 graduate Steve Scott in the evening's featured race, the open mile. Scott, the U.S. record holder in the event at 3:47.69, will open his 1985 campaign in the Sunkist.

NOTICES OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission of the City of Upland will hold a public hearing on Thursday, 24 January 1985, at 6 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the Upland City Hall, 460 North Euclid Avenue, Upland, CA 91786, to consider the following items:

VARIANCE NO. V 84 02: REVISION NO. 2 and ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT REPORT NO. EAR 634 requesting a variance from Upland Municipal Code Section No. 9448.108 (Required Structural Separation) to allow a separation of ten (10) feet between two buildings (minimum 34 ft. required) in an approved 324 unit apartment complex in an approved RM 2.0 (Multiple Family Residential - 2,000 sq. ft. lot area/DU) on property described as:

More generally described as a rectangularly shaped area of approximately 14.7 acres, located at the southwest corner of Benson Avenue and Arrow Highway, having frontages of about 629 ft. on the west side of Benson Avenue and about 905 ft. on the south side of Arrow Highway.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT: The Planning Commission issued a Mitigated Negative Declaration (3) for this project at their meeting of 29 November 1984. Reaffirmation of that decision is recommended.

CONDITIONAL USE PERMIT NO. CUP-84 15 and ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT REPORT NO. EAR 651 to allow on-site DRY CLEANING OPERATIONS in conjunction with a proposed dry cleaner service business in a 1,400 sq. ft. (M.L.) storefront unit of an existing shopping center in a CH/S (Highway Commercial - Supplementary Use) Zone, on property described as:

More generally described as being 318 West Foothill Blvd., the east end storefront unit of an existing commercial complex located at the south east corner of Foothill Blvd. and Redding Way, and having approximate frontages of 311 ft. and 230 ft. respectively on said streets.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT: The City Environmental Review Board (ERB) has determined that the proposed project does have the potential to create the following adverse effects:

1. Fire hazards;
 2. Generation of toxic fumes and vapors and/or unpleasant odors;
 3. Contamination of City sewer system.
- The significance of such effects may, however, be reduced to levels of nonsignificance through implementation of mitigation measures proposed to be required. A Mitigated Negative Declaration (3) is, therefore, recommended to be issued.

CONDITIONAL USE PERMIT NO. CUP 84 16 and ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT REPORT NO. EAR 646 to allow a COMBINATION AUTOMOTIVE SERVICE STATION AND "CONVENIENCE" GROCERY MARKET, with conjunctive WAIVERS from the Upland Municipal Code, as follows:

1. Section 9457.109.020 Alley Requirements (No alley proposed);
 2. Section 9496.060.040 Prohibited Uses and Structures (Sale of groceries or dairy products prohibited; sale of convenience groceries proposed); and
 3. Section 9496.109.0331 Landscaping Requirements Adjacent to Street Frontages (Five (5) ft. wide landscape planter required; four (4) ft. wide planter proposed on Campus Avenue frontage adjacent to a residential zone)
- in a CH (Highway Commercial) Zone, on property described as being:

More generally described as 662 680 East Foothill Blvd., a regularly shaped area of about 7 acres located at the southwest corner of Foothill Blvd. and Campus Avenue, and having approximate frontages of 195 ft. and 173 ft. on said streets respectively.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT: The City Environmental Review Board has determined that the proposed project does have the potential to:

1. Create potential traffic hazards;
 2. Change the pattern and/or scale of land uses in the environs;
 3. Adversely affect residential uses in the environs; and
 4. Increase demands on City Police services.
- Public hearing of the proposal, and appropriate conditioning of any approval of the conditional use permit required, are intended to ensure the mitigation of perceived adverse effects to levels of environmental nonsignificance. A Mitigated Negative Declaration (3) is, therefore, recommended to be issued for the proposed project.

CONDITIONAL USE PERMIT NO. CUP 79 02: MODIFICATION NO. 2 and ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT REPORT NO. EAR 589 to permit the development of the SECOND PHASE, consisting of 69 units, in an existing PLANNED RESIDENTIAL DEVELOPMENT (PRD 20) (54 units existing; 123 total units proposed) with the following conjunctive WAIVERS from the Upland Municipal Code:

1. Section 9493.103.012 Minimum Setback of Dwellings and Garages from an Interior (Private) Street
 - A. Dwellings: minimum of 10 ft. and average of 15 ft. required; minimum of 6 ft. and average of 6.5 ft. proposed for 52 dwellings;
 - B. Front on Garages: minimum of 20 ft. required; 6 to 9 ft. proposed for 52 garages; and
2. Section 9493.103.022 Minimum Setback of Dwellings from Interior Property Lines (minimum of fourteen (14) to sixteen (16) ft. required; minimum of ten (10) ft. proposed for one dwelling) in an RM 2.0 (Multiple Family Residential - 2,000 sq. ft. min. lot area/DU) Zone, on property described as:

More generally described as a rectangularly shaped area of approximately 14.2 acres, located at the southeast corner of Arrow Highway and Benson Avenue, having frontages of about 971 ft. on the south side of Arrow Highway and about 583 ft. on the east side of Benson Avenue.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT: The Environmental Review Board (ERB) has recommended reaffirmation of a Mitigated Negative Declaration (3) for the proposed project.

ZONE CHANGE NO. ZC 84 04 and ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT PUBLIC PROJECT REPORT NO. EAPPR 147 to approve a change in zone classification from CH (Highway Commercial) to CH/S (Highway Commercial - Supplementary Use) Zone on property more generally described as being:

An irregularly shaped area of about 25.2 acres +/-, generally encompassing all those properties located on the east side of Mountain Avenue north from Interstate Route 10 (San Bernardino Freeway) to the south side of Eighth Street; said area being bounded on the west by the east right of way line of Mountain Avenue, on the north by the south right of way line of Eighth Street, the east boundary of said area being located about 735 ft. (M.L.) east of the centerline of Mountain Avenue.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT: The purpose of the proposal is to assist in ensuring the comprehensive development of existing properties zoned for highway commercial use, for the protection of the living environment of residential zoned and developed properties immediately east of the subject area. A Negative Declaration (1) is, therefore, recommended to be issued for the proposed project.

TENTATIVE TRACT NO. TT 12713: REVISION NO. 1 and ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT REPORT NO. EAR 604 A to create 12 lots in an RS 15 (Single Family Residential - 1,500 sq. ft. min. lot area/DU) Zone and one (1) lot in an OS (Open Space) Zone, all on property described as:
